

Authors

Xavier AMELOT (b. 1964) is assistant-professor in geography in Bordeaux-Montaigne University, and a member of the CNRS research unit ADESS. Specialised in the geography of the environment, his research deals with the representations of nature and what they imply for environmental policies. Cartographic and landscape representations are at the heart of his analyses that confront vernacular knowledge and academic or learned knowledge. He works in the field of "critical geography," mainly on the politics of conservation in France and in Madagascar.
amelot@u-bordeaux3.fr

Diana ARCHIBALD is Associate Professor of English at the University of Massachusetts Lowell, specializing in Anglo-American transatlantic studies, 19th-century immigration, and global Dickens. Her latest co-edited book is Dickens and Massachusetts: The Lasting Legacy of the Commonwealth Visits (UMass Press, 2015), in part based on an award-winning exhibition available on-line.
Diana_Archibald@uml.edu

Marianne CAMUS is Professor emerita in English literature at Dijon University (Université de Bourgogne), France. She specializes in the nineteenth-century novel and her research and publications focus on the relationships between the aesthetics of writing and the concepts of class and gender.
marianne.camus@u-bourgogne.fr

Marie-Amélie COSTE is Senior Lecturer in Classes Préparatoires aux Grandes Écoles, notably preparing students for the entrance exams to Écoles Normales Supérieures. She holds a PhD, entitled « Being and Appearing in Charles Dickens's Novels », from the University of Paris-Sorbonne. She has published several articles on Dickens, including "Wearing and Disfiguring in Charles Dickens's Novels" (Cahiers victoriens et édouardiens, 2006), "Eugene Wrayburn or the Unbearable Lightness of Being in Dickens" (Dickensian, 2010), "Literal-minded British and Stereotypical Foreigners in Dickens: the Limits of National Identity and the Definition of the Personal" (Dickens and Italy, 2010). She has co-edited special issues entitled Dickens Matters and Dickens His/story for the Dickens Quarterly (2011); Dickens in the New Millennium for Les Cahiers victoriens et édouardiens (2012); Dickensian Landscapes for the journal Représentations (2016).
marie-amelie.coste@hotmail.com

James John CUTLER is a PhD candidate at Royal Holloway, University of London, co-supervised across the English and Media Arts departments (where he is also visiting tutor).
James.cutler.2013@live.rhul.ac.uk

Françoise DUPEYRON-LAFAY is Professor of 19th-century British literature. She has written papers on Dickens, Wilkie Collins, Le Fanu, H.G. Wells, A. Conan Doyle. She is the author of Le Fantastique anglo-saxon (1998), and of a monograph on Thomas De Quincey's autobiographical works in 2010. She translated George MacDonald's Lilith (1895) into French (2007).

Dupeyronlafay@aol.com

Mark FROST is Senior Lecturer in English Literature at the University of Portsmouth. His monograph, The Lost Companions and John Ruskin's Guild of St George: a Revisionary History was published by Anthem Press in 2014. He is the author of several articles on Ruskin. Forthcoming publications include a scholarly edition of Richard Jefferies' After London, and his latest project is a study of pastoral in early Victorian fiction.

mark.frost@port.ac.uk

Sara GAZO (b. 1985) is an independent scholar specialised in Victorian literature and Dickensian studies. She graduated from the University of Milan with an MA thesis entitled Master of Two Worlds: Dickens, Dream and the Uncanny, dealing with the oneiric and uncanny sides of Dickens's writing.

saragazo@yahoo.it

Christine HUGUET is Senior Lecturer at the University of Lille, France. She has published a range of essays on Victorian fiction, translated Dickens's A Christmas Carol for Le Livre de Poche (Un chant de Noël), and edited Spellbound, George Gissing as well as Writing Otherness: The Pathways of George Gissing's Imagination (Equilibris, 2008 and 2011). She is co-editor of special issues for the Dickens Quarterly and Les Cahiers victoriens et édouardiens; George Moore: Across Borders (Rodopi, 2013); George Gissing and the Woman Question (Ashgate, 2013); Dickens, Modernism, Modernity (Paris: Sagittaire, 2014); and an issue on Dickensian Prospects for the journal E-rea. In 2011 she curated a Dickens exhibition at the Château d'Hardelot at Condette and edited its catalogue, Charles Dickens L'Inimitable/ The Inimitable (Paris: Democratic).

christine.huguet-meriaux@univ-lille3.fr

Nathalie JAËCK (b. 1969) is Professor of 19th-century British literature at Bordeaux-Montaigne University, and head of the research group CLIMAS. Her PhD was on the Sherlock Holmes stories, and she is interested in the turn of the century: she tries to describe and define the period in between Realism and Modernism, working at the moment on the crucial mutation that took place in the Adventure novel at that time. She has written two books, Les histoires de Sherlock Holmes: une affaire d'identité (Pessac: PUB, 2008) and Charles Dickens: l'écriture comme pouvoir, l'écriture comme résistance (Paris: Ophrys, 2008), as well as numerous articles on the authors of the period.

Nathalie.Jaeck@u-bordeaux3.fr

Norbert LENNARTZ is Professor of English literature and currently Vice-Principal for Research at the University of Vechta in Germany. His teaching and research range from Shakespeare to Byron, from the Victorian Age to the early 20th century. Among his major publications are a book on the deconstruction of eroticism in 17th-century British poetry (2009), a collection of essays on representations of food (The Pleasures and Horrors of Eating: The Cultural History of Eating in Anglophone Literature, 2010, co-edited with Marion Gymnich) and two books on new bearings in Dickens criticism (Dickens's Signs, Readers Designs, 2012 with Francesca Orestano and Text, Contexts and Intertextuality: Dickens as a Reader, 2014 with Dieter Koch). He is currently preparing a collection of essays on Lord Byron: Lord Byron and the Margins of Romanticism and a monograph on bodily fluids and porous bodies: Niobe's Sons and Daughters—A Cultural History of Tears and Porous Bodies.
norbert.lennartz@uni-vechta.de

William LONG, emeritus professor at University of Aberdeen, contributed entries to the Oxford Reader's Companion to Dickens and is author of numerous articles in The Dickensian and Dickens Quarterly.
w.f.long@abdn.ac.uk

Paul SCHLICKE, honorary senior lecturer at University of Aberdeen, is author of Dickens and Popular Entertainment, editor of the Oxford Reader's Companion to Dickens and compiler of the Dickens entry in the Cambridge Bibliography of English Literature, 3rd edn. His authoritative Clarendon edition of Sketches by Boz is due to be published in 2016.
p.schlicke@abdn.ac.uk

Michael SLATER, MBE, is Emeritus Professor of Victorian Literature at Birkbeck College, University of London, and a Past President both of the Dickens Fellowship and of the Dickens Society of America, also a former Editor of The Dickensian. Among his publications are the following: The Catalogue of the Suzannet Charles Dickens Collection (1975), Dickens on America and the Americans (ed., 1979), Dickens and Women (1983), Douglas Jerrold 1803–1857 (2002), Charles Dickens 1812–1870 (2009) and The Great Charles Dickens Scandal (2012). He also edited the Dent Uniform Edition of Dickens's Journalism in four volumes; vol. 4 co-edited with John Drew (1994 – 2000).

Nathalie VANFASSE is Professor of English at the University of Aix-Marseille, France. She has written a monograph entitled Dickens entre normes et déviance (Publications universitaires de Provence, 2007) and she is the author of articles and chapters on Dickens's work and on nineteenth-century travel writing. She has co-edited special issues on Dickens Matters and Dickens His/story for the Dickens Quarterly (2011); Dickens in the New Millennium for Les Cahiers victoriens et édouardiens (2012). She has also co-edited two volumes on Charles Dickens, Modernism, Modernity: colloque de Cerisy (Editions du Sagittaire, 2014).
nathalie.vanfasse@univ-amu.fr